LARGE CHIMNEY AT CROIX, NORD, FRANCE.

At Croix, in the North of France, the firm of Messrs. Isaac Holden & Sons, of Bradford, Yorkshire, have very extensive woolen mills; connected with the works is a very fine chimney, 375 feet from the ground line to the top. On completion this was found to be 5 ft. 11 in. out of plumb. After trying many ways, by different firms, to alter this defect, all of which proved unsuccessful, the Messrs. Holden bethought them of Mr. Joseph Ball, York Castle, Oldham, who had previously done some skilful repairs to some of their chimneys in Bradford, and arranged with him for the straightening of the Croix chimney, and the fixing thereon of two of his Patent Lightning Conductors. Mr. Ball prepared his tackle (all of which was conveyed from his works in Oldham) and took his men over, and after working arduously for about seven weeks in very rough weather, and during the winter season, the chimney was straightened to the satisfaction of all concerned, thus adding another scientific certificate to the numerous others he has previously received for this class of work.
